2015 Agronomy Sales Intern

My name is Nathan Hrubes and I grew up in Garner, IA where I was involved on my family's row crop operation. This past summer I had the opportunity to intern for Landus Cooperative as one of their Agronomy Sales Interns out of Paton, IA. My major project was working with three other interns to develop a cover crop program that the company could implement in the coming year. Other tasks included treating seed, transporting seed and chemical to and from farmers, giving recommendations to farmers and other day-to-day tasks. Looking back, I learned a lot from the many people I talked with and enjoyed my time with Landus Cooperative. If you are interested in a hands-on internship where you learn to serve farmers, I would suggest you get in contact with them.
